

Tenure-track faculty positions in Medicinal Chemistry at Rutgers

The Department of Medicinal Chemistry at Rutgers University Ernest Mario School of Pharmacy invites applications for tenure-track faculty positions in Medicinal Chemistry. The candidates are expected to establish a funded, nationally recognized research program in Medicinal Chemistry. Teaching will be primarily in medicinal chemistry courses within the professional Pharm.D. curriculum and also in the Graduate Program in Medicinal Chemistry. A Ph.D. in organic or medicinal chemistry or a related discipline is required. Well-qualified candidates with current research support are encouraged to apply and higher ranks at the associate or full professor level will be considered.

Interested individuals should submit their application online at <http://jobs.rutgers.edu/postings/49489>. Application materials include a cover letter describing his/her interest in the position, statement of research interests, statement of teaching philosophy, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references with postal and email addresses and telephone and fax numbers. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the positions are filled. Please contact Dr. Longqin Hu, Search Committee Chair, at longhu@rutgers.edu for any questions about the positions.
